

Summer School

Movie and Documentary in Mental Health

From Research to Public Engagement

WHAT

This interdisciplinary intensive summer school will introduce participants to the use of film in mental health. The two-day course will cover the use of documentary as a tool in research, education and advocacy; community outreach and engagement using films; narrative and visual storytelling, artistic film-making in mental health, film for medical education and psychoanalysis and cinema. There will be workshops, film screenings, and materials from several projects that will be used by the faculty to illustrate the topics.

WHEN

Thursday 7 July 2016 at 9:00-17:00

Friday 8 July 2016 at 9:00-17:00

Thursday 7 July 2016 at 18:00-20:00

Breaking the chains, a film-documentary screening followed by a panel discussion in the presence of the director, Dr Erminia Colucci.

More details: <https://movie-ment.org>

WHERE

King's College London

Strand Campus

London WC2R 2LS

Is the course for you?

The short-course is open to students, academics, NGOs, people with lived experience of mental illness, and everybody interested in using movie and documentary in mental health research, education, promotion, and advocacy. Previous experience in filmmaking is welcome but not necessary.

FEES

£55 – £95

Including tea breaks and lunches

REGISTRATION

Reserve your place for the course here

Reserve your place for the movie here

For information: <http://www.kcl.ac.uk>
e.colucci@qmul.ac.uk

Course organizers:

Dr Erminia Colucci (Queen Mary University of London, UK)

Professor Carmine Pariente (King's College London, UK)

